

Sonoma State University Wine Business MBA Students Win Scholarships to Spain

Two Sonoma State University Wine Business MBA students have been awarded scholarships to attend a conference sponsored by The Wine Academy of Spain. The conference, which is November 13th and 14th in Rioja, will be focusing on the future of the wine industry and will have 38 of the top wine professionals in the world as guest speakers. One of the Wine MBA students, Leah McNally, works at Stag's Leap Winery in Napa. The second Wine MBA student, Andy Gamitian, works for a wine retailer and also writes a very popular wine blog. Congratulations to Leah and Andy for receiving this very prestigious award!
