

Invention Planet, LLC

Position Statement: Chief Operating Intern

Invention Planet, LLC is a start-up company based in Santa Rosa, focused on bringing new innovative technology to the marketplace. We are currently in the process of launching our first product and creating a start-up company to bring the product to market. We are looking for an energetic intern that is interested in gaining real world experience working with entrepreneurs in the early start-up phase of an emerging company. This will be a unique opportunity for a young person to experience this very rare phase of starting a new company. The position to be filled is for COI (Chief Operating Intern) reporting directly to the COO (Chief Operating Officer) of the company. The position is unpaid, but promises to be a tremendous experience for anyone interested in becoming an entrepreneur. The required tasks would involve almost all aspects of the launch of a new award winning technology. Pocket Radar, Inc. was formed a couple of months ago and is working to introduce the new Pocket Radar product this spring. The product has already received several prestigious awards including the 2010 Consumer Electronics Show Innovation Honors and the Popular Mechanics Editors Choice award. It has been featured on ABC News "Good Morning America" and NBC News "The Today Show", as well as Fox Business News, CNBC, CNN, and numerous web-based news and blog sites. See www.PocketRadar.com for more details.

We are looking for a motivated, self-starter majoring in Marketing, Communications or Business that is interested in learning about starting a company and is willing to dig in and gain experience in all aspects of an early start-up. The tasks would involve working with the entire team and helping with the product launch. This could include answering customer questions, developing tools and materials for the product launch, follow up on marketing activities, interfacing with customers, developing documentation, etc. In a small start-up everyone has to dig in and help with everything from marketing and budgets, to taking out the trash. It is a very close group of entrepreneurs working together on whatever needs to be done on a moment by moment basis.

The position will require good writing and communication skills. Please provide samples of your writing skills along with a resume and cover letter.
