

The Dance of Leadership

Based on the method developed through her research and work with multi-cultural and women executives, Dr. Johnson starts this session with a powerful multimedia presentation of five leadership styles, follows with an interactive talk to familiarize participants with their style, and then leads you through an exploration of the styles kinesthetically. This workshop combines theory, practice and experience in a novel, fun, moving session.

You will:

- Identify your authentic leadership style: what moves you.
- Learn how to match style to situation for effectiveness.
- Feel the difference in the leader vs. follower roles.
- Appreciate strengths of diverse approaches to leadership.

BIO

Robin Johnson, PhD, author of Dance of Leadership, teaches leadership, diversity, and organizational behavior as an Associate Professor of Management at California State Polytechnic University, is the founding faculty director of the University of California, Los Angeles Anderson School of Management's Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender Leadership Institute (the only program of its type at a school of management in the world) and teaches in the UCLA Leadership Institutes for Women, African Americans, Head Start Directors and Multi-cultural Communications executives. Dr. Johnson earned her PhD in Organizational Behavior and her MA in Psychology from Harvard University and a BA in International Relations and History from Brown University.